The parties in this case agree that this matter should be remanded for further administrative proceedings and agree on almost all of the issues to be addressed on remand. (See Dkts. 12, 16 & 17.) Given this agreement, the Court finds that a stipulated remand would allow for the most expeditious resolution of this case. As such, the Court hereby ORDERS the parties to confer and determine whether they can come to an agreement on a Stipulation for Remand. The parties should submit the stipulation, or inform the Court as to their inability to come to such an agreement, on or before September 28, 2007.

DATED this 13th day of September, 2007.

United States Magistrate Judge
